

Section V-B-2. Other Effects Information Introduction

This subsection includes other kinds of information useful in determining the effects of implementing various conservation practices and systems. This information can include information about "before and after" conservation adoption effects that have been developed by non-NRCS sources, such as university research, computer simulations, journal articles, useful farm magazine articles, or other information showing the effects of conservation recommendations.